CHARADE.
IN THREE PARTS.
My first is a country on the other side of the world, with a population of about 900,000 souls [illegible] chiefly on rice and rats, and their chief product of the country is TEA.
My second is seen in this country, consists of the dried leaves of several plants of the genus Thea, belonging to the natural order of Ternstroemiaceæ. The leaves are next under three inches long, and half as much to an inch broad, and of elliptical, oblong shape.
These leaves when properly prepared, make a very delicious and gently stimulating beverage, which is among women very much the same as Tibbetts says the chief is among men—the great unbosomer of secrets.
My third is just the same place as my whole, is

THE PORTLAND

Would inform the public, that they continue to

PORTLAND KEROSENE OIL.
The prevalence of a large quantity of inferior and many of which are little better than Naphtha itself—

duty to ourselves, as well as safety to consumers that the public should be informed of these facts Therefore, we again present an advertisement, and which is 128. THE PORTLAND KEROSENE, the fire test of which is 115 degrees Fo rumford, and often reaches considerably higher, also, we would say, tablished reputation

PORTLAND KEROSENE OIL COMPANY
We quote from chap. 39 U. S. 1871, the title of said chapter being "Inspection and sale of Manufactured Articles"

fluid, shall cause every cask or other vessel filled to be so inspected and marked, by a sworn inspec-aforesaid, that is not been so inspected and

THE MODERN PULPIT
VIEWS OF HENRY WARD BEECHER.
At the session of the Evangelical Alliance in New York on Wednesday, Rev Henry Ward Beecher delivered one of his characteriistic addresses, taking "The Modern Pulpit" as his theme, in the course of which he said Why is it that it is necessary at this time of the world, when civilization has advanced as it has, that there should be an order of Christian ministers?" That they would do very well among the heathen, or might be sent among the semi-civilized or to the newer parts of the country, but where is the need of them in New York where we have so many newspapers to instruct us? Daughters, where academies and societies for scientific knowledge and the diffusion of it abound, and where books are on over plenty and men are stuffed with knowledge? Why is it needful that a order of men should continue to embody so much themselves in the border periods of civilization, after the analyses and separation of functions which levitization always brings with it have come on? Is the Christian minister anything more than a general teacher of morality" The whole globe is to some sense a university with its colleges.
Physical nature is an instructor in the use of life Man is instructed by the rising and setting of the sun and all that intervenes. There are other colleges in the great universe, as society, with household business, in law and civil government and its administration, and under all these man is tutored, and much is learned that goes to the making up of the complete man. If man were to live this life alone, I scarcely see that there would be any need of any other instruction agency than those provided by the use of nature and human society, but if he is destined to live again and forever and that life and immortal to bring to us by Jesus and his parables, all that this life is but the seed and the blossom is forerunner, there is need for those who shall carry to man the spiritual elements that he needs, while taught by the scientist the truth belonging to sensual nature and by the economist those of social life.
We need the Christian minister to teach things invisible Around us is a spiritual universe with truths more important than those we dig from the crust of the globe or learn from experience of the world The population of that universe and the father of all are known to us, and the knowledge of that invisible life and the knowledge to fit it for it is the special function of the Christian ministry to teach them the light of the higher world upon the present world, and to give human life a stimulus, a spirit and an interpretation Bringing the light of the spiritual world upon this life is its territory and opens up a magazine of motives more adapted to the wants of man than can be got between the horizons of earth. Beginning where human reason begins, into ignorance and long waiting, man comes to wisdom and power by nature and by study, but that which brings into relation with God can only come by the interposition of a higher agency, not by the teaching of science, but by the power of God. My business, says St Paul, was not the administration of the spirit and of the power of God. This knowledge comes to us by inviting a higher mental economy, not depriving him of reason or imagination, but giving them vitality and power by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, and by the Christian minister is to bring man into the recognition of Christ.
In the present age—what are its objects and [illegible] ness? The first element needed that so be known in the first pulpit ance of man, his weakness, fulness or ignorance or whatever you choose. There is in the soul a pro-ing conscious need that every human be needs a spiritual mid-wife and nurse and a doctor all through the sense of a want which he cannot supply and can only be met by the teaching of Him who gives a soul to man. This is the first need. Man is full of [illegible]ches and [illegible]ams of that which is to be. He is born so [illegible] that not a bird but hatches a more perfect child than man! No animal begins so [illegible] and has so much to prospect, needs so much help as man. Help for the soul from [illegible] one scene is necessary for the [illegible] birth into the manhood, of which Christ is the only perfect example.
The second need—the sense of God with us This Apostolic [illegible] was oratorical without doubt. He knew it by his letters. He did at Rome as he [illegible] and in things that were good—himself of all the instruments by which a human life are influenced, but there was a power before which all other paled, and it was the power of God and not him that [illegible] sats afar off behind his decrees and turns [illegible] prayers by grinding an iron wheel. But it is God with us that fires our souls with [illegible] unwonted, by which, when a man is possessed by the Holy Ghost, he becomes [illegible] power transcended to earthly causes, and [illegible] him the love of God is brought out in the [illegible] as the sunlight is carried to the flowers. When that power is in man man is changed in a thousand ways by adding the elements of knowledge by which easy access is obtained to men, and we can obtain access to them, but the true sense of Christian ministry is a present sense of the sinfulness of man Because he is a sinner, and the certainty of God's overreaching power by which he [illegible] be elevated out of animal into divinity.
Poems are [illegible] translated from one tongue

FINANCIAL BUBBYISM.

One of the most amusing features of the recent monetary crisis, is the display of financial profundity afforded in the columns of the newspapers. The reporters have not only sought and published the opinions of all sorts of capitalists, from railway magnates down to the proprietors of peanut stands, but those whose opinions have not been asked, dash bravely into print, to let the great American public know they are "posted" on finance. Naturally, the favorite theme is "specie payments," and the possibility and desirability of immediate resumption. We have read a great many newspaper opinions upon this matter within the past fortnight, but in spite of an earnest desire to obtain light, have been forced to conclude that many of these incrustations only tend to envelop authors, readers and subject in a denser financial fog.

A most striking illustration of the difficulties which beset these amateur efforts at financiering, is the performance of our neighbor of the Commercial, who, in the space of a few days, has argued completely around the subject of specie payments, starting out at a hand-gallop in favor of immediate resumption, growing dizzy while swinging around the financial circle, losing his grip of chaise and rail on the home stretch, and landing plump in the mud where he started. We present extracts from two editorials that appeared in the Commercial within a period of five days, which not only prove that our neighbor has opinions upon the subject of finance, but that they are "adequate to any emergency and sufficiently elastic to embrace both sides of a troublesome question. The first is from an editorial of October 4th, declaring in its head-line that the present is "The Auspicious Moment" for resuming specie payments; the second from an editorial of October 9th, headed by the query "Is a Return to Specie Possible?" and concluding on the whole that it isn't. Here is Bubby on Finance—"you pays your money, and you takes your choice:"

Commercial, Oct. 4.

Yesterday gold was down to 109½, the lowest point, we believe, that it has touched since 1862. Under orders from Washington the mint at Philadelphia will soon, until further orders, coin $10,000,000 of gold eagles a month. The California mint will turn out the full extent of its capacity. For the first time for years our exports of agricultural staples of our imports, and bullion is coming across the ocean from Europe in very large amounts. The flow of gold to this country will probably continue for several months.

* * * Now is the auspicious time to resume specie payment. When can we hope for a more favorable opportunity?

* * * The people have had warning enough. Let them now be wise in time. Let specie payment to resumpd, and let it be resumed now.

Commercial, Oct. 9.

The mate [illegible] specie payment might be comparatively easy, but to maintain specie payment after it is once begun, is quite another matter.

* * * Would it (the Government) not have to come into the market and buy of gold, and would not the very course have the effect to place gold at a premium again?

But if there is this great difficulty in the way of the Government maintaining specie payments, how much more difficult must it be for the National Banks.

* * * In what manner the Government is to get out its greenbacks after they are once collected into the Treasury, is a puzzle to us. It has no body to present them to for redemption except itself.

That it is most desirable that a speedy return to specie payment should be made, there can be little question; but how to do it with our enormous indebtedness abroad, with nearly $800,000,000 of Government and National Bank currency afloat, is a most serious question.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS.

Just before the adjournment of Congress last Spring the Senate instructed the Committee on Privileges and Elections to examine the subject of a reform in the method of electing the President and Vice President of the United States. Senators O. P. Morton, of Indiana, Mathew H. Carpenter, Wisconsin, H. B. Anthony, Rhode Island, Thomas F. Bayard, Delaware, members of the Committee, have been holding conferences daily during the past week, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, and at their close on Wednesday authorized the statement that their deliberations involved the following propositions:

1st—To abolish electoral colleges.

2d—That the President and Vice President shall be elected by the people voting directly for candidates.

3d—That each State shall be divided into as many districts as the State is entitled to representation in Congress, to be composed of contiguous territory compact in form, and as nearly equal in population as may be, and the person having the highest number of votes for President in each district shall receive the vote of that district for President, which shall obtain one Presidential vote; that each State shall be entitled to two Presidential votes at large, which shall be counted for the person having the highest number of votes in the whole State.

4th—The person having the highest number of such Presidential votes in the United States shall be President.

5th—These provisions to be applicable to the election of Vice President.

6th—Congress shall have power to provide for holding and conducting the election for President and Vice President and to establish tribunals for the decision of contests as to a vote in any district or State and make regulations governing the proceedings of those tribunals.

The Committee believe that by the adoption of the district system of voting by the people directly for candidates, with two presidential votes in the State at large, and the plurality vote for determining the result, the election is brought as nearly home to the people as can be, not to make it an election by the nation as one community, and it still recognizes the State as such, while it enables the people of each district in the State to express their will, so that hereafter a State need not cast a solid vote, as under this system it tends to dispense with the convention which is now necessary in order to form an electoral ticket for each State, and it enlarges the liberty of the individual voter, who can vote for any citizen he may select for President or Vice President, by the plurality system the election will always be final and there can be no necessity for an election by the House of Representatives which is so much objected to. The plurality rule has been adopted successfully in all the States in the Union except four in the election of State officers, and is generally prevails in the election of members of Congress. In none of the States where it has been tried is there any thought of abandoning it. Other questions are considered in connection with the votes in States and districts and providing for exigency of death or resignation of the President after election and before inauguration. These are suggestions which have been considered, but of course no conclusions could be arrived at.

MARSHAL BAZAINE.

Previous to the war so disastrous to France and so instructive to the military reputation of her chiefs, Marshal Bazaine, the distinguished soldier now undergoing a court martial at Versailles, had made a brilliant record. After finishing a severe course of study at the Ecole Polytechnique, he entered the army in 1831, when he was twenty years old, was sent to Africa the year following, and in the arduous service of the campaign there so distinguished himself that he was promoted to the grade of Lieutenant in 1836, and received the cross of the Legion of Honor on the battle-field for his bravery and skill. After serving in Spain in the campaigns against the Carlists, he returned to Algeria with the rank of Captain in 1839, and took part in all the most notable expeditions of the war there.

When the Crimean war broke out, Capt. Bazaine was promoted to the command of a brigade of infantry, and during the siege of Sebastopol, conducted himself with such bravery as to merit honorable mention in the despatches of Marshals Canrobert and Pelissier. He subsequently was made a Division General, and commanded the French portion of the expedition which reduced Kinburn. At the close of the war in the East, he was appointed inspector of several expeditions of infantry, and had the dignity of Commander of the Legion of Honor conferred on him, with the rank of General of Division. In 1863 he took command of the Mexican expedition, succeeding Gen. Forey, and so far as military force could effect them, was successful in attaining the objects of that ill-starred campaign.

Marshal Bazaine commanded one of the main divisions of the French Army when the Franco-Prussian war commenced. Only a small portion of his command took part in the battle of Forbach, where Gen. Frossard was so thoroughly defeated by the Prussian Commander Von Goben. One of the charges against the General is that he omitted to advance to Frossard's aid in sufficient strength to be of any use. He is also charged with culpably neglecting to co-operate with MacMahon, when notified that the latter was moving to the relief of Metz; with holding intercourse with the enemy and with the unnecessary surrender of the fortifications of Metz and its garrison. The motive ascribed by his accusers is that he had no sympathy with the national cause after the fall of the Empire, and that he sought to act the part of an intriguer rather than that of a loyal chieftain.

The preparations for the trial have been of an elaborate nature, and the proceedings, which not only involve the integrity of the Marshal, but also the character of the Imperial military system, are attracting much attention on both sides of the Atlantic.

A Dublin despatch states that the Irish Agricultural Laborers Union, in the event of the Government failing to settle the question of waste lands in Ireland, have decided to emigrate to the United States, en masse.

A Washington special to the Boston Advertiser says: "Senator Cameron said to-day that Senator Conkling had informed him very positively that he should not accept the Chief-Justiceship if it was offered him. He desired instead to serve out his term in the Senate. So far as is known, more of the justices are in favor of promoting Justice Miller than any other member of the court."

At a meeting of members of the Left, in Paris Wednesday, a number of letters from various provinces were read expressing strong aversion to the establishment of a monarchy, an aversion which is daily decreasing. Gambetta declared that he felt not the least anxiety concerning the permanency of the Republic. He was certain that the proposition to establish a monarchy could not obtain the vote of the majority of the Assembly.

John N. Pierce, Jr., cashier of the Merchants National Bank, Lowell, is reported to have abstracted about $175,000 from the funds of the bank, and made restitution of $80,000. It does not yet appear how this money has been disposed of, or whether, indeed, the bottom line of the defalcation has been ascertained. The officers commenced by denying that there was any irregularity at all in the bank.

The New York Liberals nominated the following State ticket at Elmira, on Wednesday:

Secretary of State, Diedrich Willers; Comptroller, Nelson K. Hopkins; Attorney General, Daniel Pratt; Treasurer, Thomas H. Raines; Canal Commissioner, James Jackson; Engineer, Sylvanus H. Sweet; State Prison Inspector, M. E. Platt.

The Massachusetts Homœopathic Society report the following amounts paid out in defending the members arraigned by the Massachusetts Medical Society:

To Messrs. Brooks & Ball for legal services, $626.70; to R. H. Dana for legal services, $1,000; for printing, postage, etc., $350.85; paid by subscription, $110, leaving due $1,566.55.

CATHOLIC TOTAL ABSTINENCE UNION OF AMERICA.—On Wednesday the third annual general convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America assembled in New York city, the session to continue four days. Delegates of societies in all parts of the United States and Canada, are announced; also Bishops, clergy and prominent citizens, as invited guests. This convention, it is claimed, will be the largest and most important yet held, and probably no movement or gathering possesses greater interest or can be productive of more beneficial results to the Catholic community.

The total area of British India is officially stated at 950,010 square miles. Under the administration of the Governor General of India there are Ajmere, containing 2,070 square miles; Coorg, 2,000; Berar, 16,000, and Mysore, 27,077. Under Governors there are Madras, with 141,740 square miles, and Bombay, with 127,522 square miles. Under Lieut. Governor, Bengal, with 218,231 square miles; the North west Provinces, with 90,001; and the Punjab, with 102,001. Under Chief Commissioners, Oude, with 23,973 square miles; the Central Provinces, with 84,162 square miles; and British Burmah, with 88,004 square miles. All this great region is under British administration of government, and is exclusive of native States. It has a population equal to an average of 201 per square mile.

Gov. Washburn, of Wisconsin, in a recent speech, said:

Heretofore too many legislators in some of the States were just as much bought and sold as the bullocks in the shambles. While the people have nobody to lobby for them, the railway lobbyist is everywhere. He invades the halls of legislation, he breaks over the rules, he is seen on the floor of the House or Senate, squat like a toad at the ear of this member or that, imploring one or threatening the other. This thing should end. You are no enemy of railways, but you are determined that they shall stick to their legitimate duties, and no longer dictate legislation or who shall be elected to office.

The Monticello (Iowa) Express contains the following pertinent remarks: Has the Democratic party acknowledged its blood guiltiness or formally disbanded? Remember that so long as the organization of the Democratic party continues, it is a party still—retaining the old feelings of passion, pride, prejudice, anger, mortification, revenge—and the organization is the sign that it still cherishes designs and hopes of success. Remember that whatever mask it may put on, under whatever guise it may appear, whether it calls itself anti-monopoly or people's movement, or new party, it is the same old Democratic party still controlled by the conventions and principles that made it a party. There is no new party.

GRAIN TRADE OF CHICAGO.—The rapidity with which Chicago has emerged from the depression and demoralization caused by the financial panic is shown by the grain statistics of the Board of Trade. Last week the receipts of flour were 37,000 barrels, and of grain 1,933,000 bushels. The grain shipments for the same period were 1,378,000 bushels. From present indications the grain trade of Chicago for this week will be larger than during any like period of its history. Nor is there any prospect of difficulty in handling it. Currency is flowing to this point from all quarters of the country for investment in Western products. Chicago holds the key to the situation; but her merchants push every advantage to the utmost, and the remaining period of navigation will witness such such a vast influx of cereals from the West as will not only assure an easy money market here during the winter, but insure an export trade of very large volume which will tend to relieve the whole country from the disastrous effects of the recent disturbance.—Inter-Ocean.

Albert Gardner, winner and holder of the diamond cue emblem of the championship of America at the four ball carom game, was played on a 5½ feet by 11 foot table, was surrendered the cue to H. W. Gallagher, for the reason that that size billiard table is no longer found in public rooms.

THE NATHAN MURDER MYSTERY

Capt. Irving with detectives Dozenburg arrived this morning from San Francisco, having in custody John T Irving, who claims to know all about the Nathan murder. Capt. Irving gave strict orders not to allow anyone to see or speak with the prisoner till further orders. The Captain being questioned as to what the prisoner told him said he could not possibly tell any portion of conversation about the Nathan murder as it was likely to be on the whole case. The captain admitted that he had changed his mind as to what

IRVING KNEW ABOUT THE NATHAN MURDER.

The prisoner in San Francisco told enough to put officers and reporters, during interviews to get the police of New York interested.

On arrival of the New York officers in San Francisco, they were shown Irving's cell and had a long conversation. Irving would say no more until the officers took him to a private room where he was satisfied that no others could hear what was said Irving confessed the officers that he knew more about the Nathan murder than he got credit for Capt Irving says the story told by him is entirely different from the stories published and he is of the opinion that the Nathan case will be again revived

THE ALLIANCE—THE DELEGATES EXCITED

During the session of the Evangelical Alliance to-day, Hon J. L. M Curry, L L D., of Richmond, Va., spoke upon civil and religious liberty, arguing that the union of Church and State is wrong in principle and injurious in practical operations, when the bell called him to order. The audience called loudly for him to go on, but the Chairman stated that many invited guests from abroad holding different views were present and it would be discourteous and unchristian to continue the discussion The speaker's voice was drowned by cries of "Curry! Curry!" in response to which Mr Curry said that he abided by the rule of limitation most readily, yet he would most emphatically protest against being termed by the chairman discourteous or unchristian-like? An uproar here ensued, with terrific loud calls of 'Curry! Curry!' accompanied by stamping of feet, etc. In the din the voice of the chairman struggled to be heard, and finally comparative order was restored and he chairman purchased the vast audience to be considerate. He had been informed by visiting friends that the discussion was very popular for them and he (Crook) admitted not that he agreed with Curry in his views upon the topic, but respect for their views of other friends advised a cessation of the discussion A hymn was then sung.

Whitcomb, was dismasted and water logged during the gale on Wednesday, when six miles northeast of Cape Ann The Captain and crew took to the boat yesterday morning, were dashed from the shore, and the life boat was sent to their assistance. Upon reaching them one man was found dead and the Captain just alive, while a third man had been a few minutes before washed out of the boat and drowned The schooner was an old vessel, having been built in 1833 at Penobscot, and rebuilt in 1847. She was 75 tons burthen

THE NORTH PENOBSCOT AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY. Mr. Editor —This Society held its annual Show and Fair at Lincoln Village on Wednesday and Thursday, and was very successful. The exhibition of cattle and horses was good, of other products excellent, notably corn raised by F. H Nute, Lost Nation, wheat by Timothy Fuller, apples by James Pinkham, pumpkins by S. C. Ramsdell, buster by Mrs. B. Clapp, Mrs S. Bean, Mrs. A. O. Ingersoll and others. In many things this fair was superior in quality to the State Fair, especially in vegetables. The attendance was large, bringing together old acquaintances and making many new ones, which is one of the least of the many good things about these annual gatherings. P.

NEW MUSICAL ORGANIZATION. Pursuant to the call published in these columns, a meeting was held in City Hall last evening, for the purpose of forming a musical association similar in, character to the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston. It was largely attended, and was called to order by G. W. Merrill, Esq., upon whose motion N. L. Perkins, Esq., was chosen Chairman and Mr. F. A. Curtis Secretary. After remarks on the object of the meeting Messrs. Merrill, Crowell, Bradbury, Fenno, Sullivan, Silsby and others, it was voted unanimously to form a Society, and Messrs. Geo. W. Merrill, J. A. The new vessel is of a beautiful model and most thoroughly built of hardwood and Jamper, ceiled and planked with hard-pine. She is well fastened with bronze treenails and composition, and is made "upon honor" in every part. A LAW ABIDING PEOPLE? Mr Editor —I notice in Thursday's WHIG AND COURIER an item from the Union, stating that salmon full of spawn were sold in the streets of Machias, last week, and calling for the enforcement of the fish laws in that district. So long as the people of any community knowing of the infraction of any law, witnessing the commission of an offence, have not the moral courage to make a complaint before some Magistrate, or call upon some police officer or constable to make the arrest, just so long must the law be a dead letter in that community. Even in our own city of Bangor, the same weakly spirit prevails. People will witness an outrage in the act of commission, perhaps some poor, weak, starved animal being beaten by a drunken brute, and with the exclamation of "it's too bad," or "why don't some one arrest him" or "where is the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," pass on. A law to be effective must be every body's business and must have every body's unitrest and co operation.

BANGOR BOARD OF TRADE AND MANUFACTURES At a special meeting of the Bangor Board of Trade and Manufactures, held last evening in the Council room, City Hall, the President, R S Prescott, Esq., in the chair, Hon Moses Giddings was unanimously elected delegate to the National Board of Trade, which meets in Chicago on the 20th It was also voted that in case Mr Giddings should be prevented from attending by sickness or casualty he is empowered to select a substitute

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Rev Dr Tefft, Secretary of the Board, introduced Rev Mr Upham, founder of a system by which he claims to be able to predict the weather a month in advance, and also a method of computing earth quakes and volcanic periods on the same basis Mr Capen in an address of nearly an hour in length, explained the foundation and merits of the system, which he says is based on a discovery he made some twenty years ago, that the atmosphere has a tidal system similar to that of the ocean except that it is free from local disturbances and is hence perfectly regular in its workings The moon in the claims attracts the atmosphere towards itself in the form of a vast cone, and as the moon revolves about the earth the cone of course follows When the moon is in the same line from the globe with the sun, the rays of the latter orb are intensified by this atmospheric cone which acts as a series of powerful lenses, and there is in consequence great heat on that portion of the earth directly under it, while other parts are correspondingly colder From this Mr Capen deduces his system, and he has been reducing it to practicability for twenty years Of course we cannot go into details in our limited space, but the Board unanimously requested Mr Capen to deliver a public lecture in City Hall next week, (evening to be announced) and our readers will have the opportunity of hearing his system fully explained

THOMAS NAST, who lectures in this city next Monday evening (and whose lecture will be largely attended, judging by the number of tickets sold at Bugbee & Co's yesterday) was born in 1840 at Landau Bavaria, and early developed a talent for drawing which has since made him famous He came to this country with his mother in 1846 and his father, who in that year entered the American army followed three years later Young Nast was sent to school and made good progress, but though his taste for art had not abated, he found few facilities for cultivating it. His father wished him to be a wood-turner, but he strenuously refused and seized every opportunity for the practice of his chosen profession He studied a while at Kaufmann's academy but soon left to act as door keeper in Bryant's gallery, where he could keep pictures which visitors were not present At the age of 14 he was employed on Frank Leslie's publications at $5 a week, and used all his spare time in studying in the galleries and the School of Design. Not long after he was sent by the New York Illustrated News to England to illustrate the great prize fight between Heenan and Sayers, and his sketches at once made a sensation Then the news came that Garibaldi had gone to Sicily to fight for Italian independence, and Nast was deeply anxious to go at once to the seat of war His funds were gone, however, and he could not have carried out his design had not Heenan lent him $100 From May, 1860, to the time the army entered Naples, Nast served on Garibaldi's staff, meeting with many adventures and narrow escapes—meanwhile constantly sending war sketches to the Illustrated London News, the New York Illustrated News and Le Monde Illustre of Paris At the close of the campaign Nast travelled through Italy, Switzerland and Germany, and in February, 1861, came back to New York, his funds reduced to $1 50 He went on to the Illustrated News once more and gradually worked himself into "Harper though many of his sketches for the latter paper were refused Few of our readers but have seen his war pictures in Harper's Weekly, and the artist's fortunes and progress may be traced in that journal down to the present time His cartoons published during the war of the rebellion were of inestimable benefit to the Union cause, and during the last Presidential campaign his political caricatures won for him a world wide reputation. He has had many imitators, but no one has excelled him either in the keen satire or the genuine humor of his caricatures, and he is eminently qualified to speak upon the art that has made his name a household word

DIAMOND WORDS General Sherman knows what words are good for, and here is what he told the army of the Cumberland last week at Pittsburgh, about his command er in chief, who once asked of him the privilege of saying a word to his boys in camp

"I have heard the best orators, and have marked them well, but I never heard a man who spoke to the hearts of men as Lincoln spoke to those of the men who stood before him I remember almost every word he said He addressed them as children, and said that those were sad days, but better were coming; that rain had fallen, but the skies would soon be clear, they should not be discouraged, but think of the to-morrow, that awaited them, having faith in the nation and in final success, which would come as surely as there was a God in Heaven. The speech reached all hearts and was worth its weight in diamonds.

The leading masses of the United States have long felt that President Grant was one of their truest friends, and their confidence in him was shown by the majority with which he was re-elected. His course is justly commented in the following from the Louisville Commercial:

It is very creditable to President Grant that the public anxiety he has shown about the money question has been in regard to its effect on the demand for labor, and the liability to [illegible] by [illegible]

Minnesota does not care to be twitted about the Northern Pacific failure Yet one of the Chicago papers does so, and the Minneapolis Tribune replies —

This is cowardly business and they will find Minnesota quick to resent the insult. A State that sowed $40,000,000 worth a year of a single staple can well afford to ignore sneers at her hyperborean climate and a west and brave railroad venture like the Northern Pacific can afford to despise the words of a paper whose publisher has been once a bankrupt But it will perhaps be economical to send our wheat to St Louis instead of Chicago, and there is no reason why we should continue to feed a reptile that would bite us if it were not toothless Suppose the Minnesota farmers should conclude to leave half the elevators of Chicago empty next year?

THE WESTERN RAILWAYS. The Chicago Tribune says that although the earnings of almost all the Western railroads show an increase over last year, the dividends have in almost every instance decreased and the railroads are generally short of money—so short, indeed that merchants who sell supplies to the companies at Chicago find it difficult to collect what is due them This is ascribed by the managers of most of the roads to the fact that they are devoting the bulk of their net earnings to the reconstruction, improvement and extension of their lines, laying side and double tracks and steel rails, and building iron bridges

THE CROSS ON THE DECK.

BY WADE ROBINSON.

At behind the dreary voyage, and the home of love before,
Like a maiden to her marriage glides the vessel to the shore.

Like a maiden thro' the moonlight and the watch o'er seager eyes Cast the shadowy capes and headlands, standing spectral in the skies.

Not a wreath of smoke is twisting like a snake along the shore
But dend all a pent volcano through the roaring hatches breaks!

See them crowding from the cabins, dumb in terror and despair
Men and women and young children, with white cheeks and blowing hair

O the flames so wild and busy, how they swing and fling the ropes How they dance with crackling laughter round a hundred dying hopes

Quick the boats are lossed and laden, and launched with dashing oars they fly For the seeming have won their safety, and the weak are left to die.

Now amid the rush and anguish, see the gentle Captain stands
With a look of quiet pleading, and a gleam of Heaven in his hands

And he says, "O gather forward where the deck is not on fire I will guide the burning vessel, trust me, I will save you yet!

Not a creature waller upward on the cordage and the sails
And the steersman still is steadying, still is standing with the gales

And around him door and gunwale reek and blacken with the heat and spit,
And the strong heart dies within him at the fury of the fleet

And the land grows nearer, clearer and the pure and peaceful dawn Gauzy golden o'er the evening darkness, over all the heaven is drawn

Little clouds of pink and yellow do yet over floating there Peep past edges of your sonnity down on sorrow and despair!

Now a hundred boats are boating with a smoother, calmer heart
O an town is hewing closer with the broken step of death

For the edges scar hot and yellow have forgotten how to feel Hutching all with fulling sinews at the hot and blazing wheel.

And the staring eyes can only see the land the coming near
And the boats that hasten toward them, and the crowds that run and cheer.

Saved! in speechless agony before him. "Saved" the echoing headland cries Saved! Negroes and women, hand in hand, and sinks upon the flame and dies

Write his name, below his Master's, with the wise and true in heaven For like Him he saved others, but himself he could not save.

SEARCH FOR A LOST CHILD.—A family named Colebird, living on Nelson street, lost their little child, a girl of six years, Monday. The alarm was at once given, and a vigorous search was soon prosecuted. The neighbors for several streets adjoining, either joined in the search or assembled at the house of the afflicted family and graphically recalled cases, where little children were lost, and after a long search, found stark and still in death, and thus consumed time that would have otherwise passed drearily enough to the agonized parents. Several people remembered to have seen the little girl in several different directions, and parties followed the various directions. Then there were others who had ideas of their own in regard to the whereabouts of the missing child, and one of these, a neighbor named Wakely, was led by this instinct to crawl under a barn, but in the transit became wedged in, that it took two men and a hoist to get him out again A few minutes later his zeal and discretion of him to sit down a well, and when part way down he lost his hold, gave forth a whoop like an Indian, and disappeared beneath the sparkling waters! He was rescued more dead than alive, but still burned with sympathy for the stricken family, and was the water dripping from his garments, crawled up on a beam to look over a haystack, and owing to the slippery condition of his clothes again lost his balance, and came down to the barn floor on his back with a force that deprived him of his breath. At ten o'clock the search was given up for the night and the parents retired, but not to sleep! At half past ten a knock sounded at the front door, which, being opened, revealed the lost child! She had fallen asleep on the top floor of the house, and becoming uneasy in her dreams had fallen off and awakened, and had now come in for the particulars. No words can express the delight of the parents at the recovery of their child, nor depict the sensations of Mr Wakley when he came around the next morning on a pair of borrow crutches, and smelling strong enough of liniment to knock down a shanty, and learned the result of the affair. It is pleasant to learn that not one of the excited neighbors had any serious idea that the girl was lost any of the time.—Danbury News
